3. The oath/declaration filed on 01/28/2004 is acceptable.

Information Disclosure Statement

4. The IDS filed on 01/28/2004 and 06/14/2004 have been considered and made of record.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-6 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tomoda et al. [US 5,111,199] in view of Wang et al. [US 6,674,639].

Regarding claims 1-2 and 6, Tomoda et al. disclose a portable device (100, figure 6, column 3, line 4) for communication with an external device, the portable device comprising: a case (120, 122, figure 6, column 6, lines 26-27) having a cover (120, figure 6) and a base (122, figure 6) being formed of a flexible material (column 2, line 21); a battery section (410, figure 6, column 6, line 40) formed in the case.

Tomoda et al. disclose the instant claimed invention except for the casing having a separable portion formed corresponding with the battery section; and the part of the case being deformable to open the separable portion and expose the battery of the case.

Wang et al. disclose a portable device including a cover (figure 3), wherein the cover has at least a corner portion (see figure 3) being formed of a flexible material (312, 313, figure 3, column 3, line 8) and being deformable.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a flexible portion corresponding the battery section of Tomoda et al., as suggested by Wang et al., for the purpose of enabling open/close the corner of the case to replace the battery.

Regarding claim 3, Tomoda et al., disclose the instant claimed invention except for the separable portion having a first connecting surface including a first fitting portion formed to surround the battery compartment, and a second connecting surface including a second fitting portion to which the first fitting portion is fitted.

Wang et al. disclose the separable corner portion having a first connecting surface (element 310, figure 3) including a first fitting portion (315, figure 3) formed thereon, and a second connecting surface (301, figure 3) including a second fitting portion (a convex element corresponding to the first fitting portion as shown in the figure 3) to which the first fitting portion is fitted.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the fitting portion design of Wang et al. in Tomoda et al., for the purpose of providing completely seal the casing device.

Regarding claim 4, Tomoda et al., as modified, disclose the case being formed of a synthetic resin and being elastically deformable (column 2, lines 21-22).

Regarding claim 5, Tomoda et al., as modified, disclose the portable device having a flexible printed circuit board therein (400, 403, figure 6, column 6, lines 31-32).

Regarding claim 15, Tomoda et al. disclose a portable device (100, figure 6, column 3, line 4) for communication with an external device, the portable device comprising: a case (120, 122, figure 6, column 6, lines 26-27) having a cover (120, figure 6) and a base (122, figure 6) being formed of a flexible material (column 2, line 21); a battery section (410, figure 6, column 6, line 40) formed in the case.

Tomoda et al. disclose the instant claimed invention except for the casing having a separable portion formed corresponding with the battery section; the part of the case being deformable to open the separable portion and expose the battery of the case; and the separable portion having a first connecting surface including a first fitting portion formed to surround the battery compartment, and a second connecting surface including a second fitting portion to which the first fitting portion is fitted.

Wang et al. disclose a portable device including a cover (figure 3), wherein the cover has at least a corner portion (see figure 3) being formed of a flexible material (312, 313, figure 3, column 3, line 8) and being deformable. Furthermore, Wang et al. disclose the separable corner portion having a first connecting surface (element 310, figure 3) including a first fitting portion (315, figure 3) formed thereon, and a second connecting surface (301, figure 3) including a second fitting portion (a convex element corresponding to the first fitting portion as shown in the figure 3) to which the first fitting portion is fitted.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a flexible portion, including a fitting portion design, corresponding the battery section of Tomoda et al., as suggested by Wang et al., for the purpose of enabling open/close the corner of the case to replace the battery and the case is completely sealed after replacing the battery.
